DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

2. The abstract of the disclosure is objected to because of the inclusion of phrases which can be implied, such as "disclosed" in line 1. Correction is required. See MPEP § 608.01(b).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

4. Claims 7-10, 13, and 15-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

5. Claims 7, 9, and 10 recite the limitation "the portion model" in lines 6 and 1, respectively. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claims.

6. Claim 13 recites the limitation "the decoded segments" in lines 5-6. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

7. Claim 15 recites the limitation "the general model" in line 3. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

8. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

9. Claims 1-8 and 11-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Lennon et al (6,516,090).

Lennon et al, in Figures 1-11, discloses an automated video interpretation system using the same method of encoding and decoding video content as specified in claims 1-8 and 11-26 of the present invention, the method using a plurality of encoders 254 each associated with one of a plurality of content models (i.e. regions) and including a generic encoder associated with a generic content model 266, the method further uses a plurality of decoders each associated with one of the plurality of content models (Fig. 11) and including a generic decoder associated with the generic content model (i.e. model parameters from 266), the method comprising extracting a portion from the video content 120; mapping the portion to associate a model from the plurality of models 130; if a model is mapped to the portion: encoding the portion using an encoder associated with the portion model (e.g. probabilistic-model); if a model is not mapped to the model: encoding the portion using the generic encoder 266; transmitting the portion to a switch 256; if a model is mapped to the portion: routing the portion via the switch to a decoder associated with the portion model decoder (i.e. decoding probabilistic-model); if a model is not mapped to the portion: routing the portion via the switch to the generic decoder (i.e. based on encoded model parameters); connecting an output from each decoder of the plurality of decoders to a second switch (906, 912); and receiving output from each decoder of the plurality of decoders to assemble the decoded segments for display 904.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

10. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

11. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

12. Claims 9 and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lennon et al.

Although Figure 3 of Lennon et al discloses that the portion model is chosen from probabilistic models such as action, slow, scene details, light changes, and information associated with properties of the scene and special effects, it is noted Lennon et al differs from the present invention in that it fails to disclose the complete list of models as specified in claims 9 and 10. However, Examiner takes Official Notice that such video classifications are notoriously well known in the art. Therefore, one of ordinary skill in the art would have had no difficulty in exploiting the segmentation techniques as disclosed in Lennon et al, as well as other common video segment models in order to better understand the content of an image through more detailed identification of significant objects or regions in the image.
